In the past 35 years, Intronics has specialised in the development and supply of connectivity solutions for information and data supplies, retail and electronics. These connectivity solutions represent various kinds of connections; from the traditional connection as the cable or the connector to the connections between KVM or digital signage applications. Intronics' complete program is built from these (basic) connections and accessories.

Besides supplying standard stock products, we create customer specific solutions. We focus on the wishes and demands of our customers. Communication and cooperation with these customers are the factors to come to a successful result.

Intronics has offices throughout Europe; besides the main office in Barneveld and an office in Belgium, there are more foreign sales offices. This makes Intronics a suitable business partner in the international market.
